

FROM IDEA TO REALITY 1894 - 1906

"I think it is unfortunate that it has been termed a movement for the relief of the Supreme Court. It is a movement on behalf of the administration of the law, for the relief of those whose lives, whose liberty, whose property is involved, those who have been given under the constitution of the state the right to have an adverse decision reviewed."

— Andrew Cobb, in an address concerning the Supreme Court swollen docket
